

Johnson & Johnson WiSTEM²D Leadership Workshop

Leadership, Learning, and Navigating Your Path

Insights from Industry and Academia: A Conversation on Leadership and Growth

Join us for an inspiring conversation with Stacey Lallier, Senior Director, Strategic Planning & Commercial Insights at Johnson & Johnson and adjunct professor at Rutgers University Edward J. Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy. Drawing from her extensive leadership experience in Medtech and education, Stacey will share insights on building a meaningful career, developing as a leader, and navigating transitions with confidence

In 2015, Johnson & Johnson launched WiSTEM²D – Winning in Science, Technology, Engineering, Math, Manufacturing, and Design (STEM²D) – initiative to promote learning and career opportunities in STEM²D disciplines. Led by a network of volunteers from across Johnson & Johnson and its local operating companies, this ambitious initiative seeks to promote learning across Youth, University and Professionals.
